

Brian Borcharding
Project Manager, The Banks

Brian has been with Messer since 1997 and has more than a decade of construction experience. His project experience includes complex office buildings and various public and education projects. Brian is currently providing leadership for The Banks.

On Messer jobsites, he manages all field-related items, providing quality control leadership and expediting the project and safety controls. He creates and implements the construction plan for the project-ensuring that all construction activities are carefully organized and communicated to eliminate conflicts. He is responsible for the day-to-day work.

He graduated from The Ohio State University in 1998 with a degree in Civil Engineering. Brian is also a United States Green Building Council (USGBC) LEED Accredited Professional.
